

Although media would like us to believe our lives depend on trade, commerce, banking and industry, everything we trade, sell, produce or eat somehow originates from green plants (photosynthetic material) and rocks (compressing organic material to fuel, metals, and minerals).

We, the most powerful generators of environmental change, use over 40% of the photosynthetic product of the planet, causing externalities that create the most serious perils that civilization faces (climate change, droughts, floods, breakdown and loss of ecosystems); we destroy while we take what we need. Gandhi's suggestion was; let's be the change we want to see!

Scopel4+ can assist anyone in the forestry and land-use sector that aspires to make a difference; that seeks to work in an environmentally responsible, socially aware and economically sound manner.

Triple bottom line; no pretences, no games, just fair business...
